Keystone will host dance-theater

Pennsylvania's first modern dance-theater company, Dancetheater, will be appearing at Keystone Junior College in Lehigh Valley on Thursday, Oct. 1, at 8:30 p.m.

Dancetheater's appearance is the opening event of the 1981-1982 Keystone Junior College concert and lecture series and is open to community residents at no charge.

According to Michael Allen, chairman of this year's series, the group will perform in the Brooks Auditorium on campus.

Dancetheater, a five-member company will present works from widely varied and entertaining repertoires of concert dance.

The group's increasing popularity with audiences is due primarily to the emphasis the company places on the creative dance works unlike almost anything happening the dance world today.

Artistic director Trina Collins says of her dancers, "Lasting works of art that are worthy as serious artistic pieces, they also have to entertain the parts of an audience."

Further details on Dancetheater's appearance at Keystone are available by contacting Michael Allen at the college.

Students can keep that learning

For all those students who wish they could retain what they learned in class with final exams... they can. Not by working harder, but by working smarter.

It's a matter of using the learning process and the laws of forgetting to our advantage. Just knowing what happens and why, can help students do things to retain the information received in class for an indefinite time, certainly long enough to pass their exams.

For instance, we know that, for the student, the average span of concentration on a single subject is 50 minutes (that's why most classes are scheduled for 50 minutes).

The continuous influx of new material speeds up forgetting, so we can expect that, after several hours of concentration on new material, we'll forget most of what we learned during the first hour. Study habits should be scheduled with that in mind.

We know that most forgetting occurs immediately after learning. On the other hand, if steps are taken to remember something the day after it's been learned, chances are it will stick with us.

We know that cramming is relearning. Realizing this, the student can prepare a more productive exam session.

Reviews, timing the reviews to offset the curve of forgetting, consolidation of material... these are some of the other keys in the process used to impress the mind with the material learned and needed to retain.

If done properly the mind will retain the material... in some cases indefinitely. Knowledge of this process can serve well in school and will be a life long asset in other areas.

A report published by a college studies unit details these and other factors we know about learning and forgetting.

Francis' — a happy play will help St. Joseph's

It's a happy play, and in these times when there is very little to be happy about some-thing like Francis' is bound to put a smile on your face and a good feeling in your heart.

This is how Rita Burke, president of the St. Joseph's Hospital auxiliary, summed up her feelings describing the play "Francis" based on the life and times of St. Francis of Assisi. It is a play about the saint who inspired persons of great and little faith for centuries.

The play will be performed by the West Side Players, under the direction of Barbara Arabas, on Nov. 20, 21, and 22 in Marian Hall at St. Joseph's Hospital, Carbondale.

There will also be two performances scheduled for Dec. 5 at the Fine Arts Auditorium of Marywood College, Scranton.

On Nov. 21, a special afternoon performance is planned at Marian Hall for elementary school students. There will also be a premiere performance for patrons. Patrons' tickets are available from auxiliary members for $7.50 each.

Following the premiere performance, a reception will be held by the auxiliary for the cast, patrons, and the band.

"Francis" premiered during the 41st International Eucharistic Congress in 1976 and has been critically acclaimed. Standing-room-only audiences have seen the play's revival at Philadelphia and on Broadway.

The West Side Players have offered to do the performances free of charge. Profit realized from the performances will aid in the acquisition of equipment for St. Joseph's Hospital.
